Introduction

It is known that for the first time in the history of Uzbekistan for the last four years in the renewed Uzbekistan, the President of Uzbekistan submits an Address to the Oliy Majlis. In particular, in his Address to the Oliy Majlis on December 29, 2020, he said: "Experience has shown that countries with a strong and effective system of governance, a one-sided population, will be able to eliminate the threat of a pandemic in a timely manner" - emphasizes [1,2].

The issues raised in the petition are extremely broad. Issues such as improving the quality of education, employment, combating the pandemic, reducing poverty, identifying "growth points" in the regions, combating corruption, establishing a women's public council, freedom of speech, and the "one court - one instance principle" are on the list. only a few. It is extremely difficult to determine which issue is primary or more important in terms of weight, load, and weight. It is known that the first law signed by President Shavkat Mirziyoyev as the President of the Republic of Uzbekistan on September 14, 2016, the Law "On State Youth Policy" has a symbolic meaning. mujassam. The proposal of President Shavkat Mirziyoyev to adopt the UN Convention on the Rights of the Child at the UN was warmly welcomed by the international community, given that we live at the same time with the largest number of young people in human history [2,3]. On this basis, the Uzbek leader cited the fact that today the number of young people in the world has exceeded two billion, and the need to protect young people at a time when international terrorism and extremism are growing rapidly as important factors.

It should be noted that this issue is also reflected in the "Action Strategy for the five priority areas of development of the Republic of Uzbekistan in 2017-2021" [2,4]. We all know that President Shavkat Mirziyoyev has declared 2021 the Year of Youth Support and Health Promotion. It is important that the issue of youth is in the center of attention, on the agenda.

First, young people, who make up more than half of our population, are a large stratum in terms of quantity, a great force.

Second, because young people are full of energy and enthusiasm, they become more active and flexible than other groups.

Third, because young people are open to innovation, they are distinguished by their innovation and initiative.

Fourth, young people, who make up a significant part of the working age population, will be interested in raising their status and assimilating new social roles.

Fifth, young people whose values have not yet been fully formed strive to find their place in life.

Sixth, youth is a strategic resource of the state, which means that our future life will directly depend on how much attention we pay to the youth who are growing up today.

After all, it is not for nothing that it is said that "youth is the builder of the future." Most importantly, young people are a part of society, an integral part of it. Therefore, the problems of young people should be considered as problems of the whole society. Therefore, youth issues in Uzbekistan have become a priority of state policy.

The petition identified six tasks to support young people. These are:

- Creating the necessary conditions for the full coverage of every child of kindergarten age with preschool education;
- Accelerate the reforms to radically improve and improve the quality of school education, to create decent conditions for teachers;
- Pay special attention to improving the coverage and quality of higher education;
- Development of science and innovations, which are the basis for the development of the country;
- Ensuring youth employment and entrepreneurship;
- Introduction of a new system of special care for children from needy families, orphans, children with disabilities and those in need of treatment.

It should be noted that a significant part of the above-mentioned tasks are closely related to educational problems. In other words, the Address presents education and science as an effective means of solving the problems of young people, emphasizing that "salvation is in knowledge" and emphasizing that the state can not develop without focusing on education in the current era of "knowledge economy". The appeal also pays special attention to improving the coverage and quality of higher education, the development of science and innovation. The appeal interprets it as a human duty to show kindness to our young people in need of special attention. As a result, the introduction of a new system of special care for children from needy families, orphans, children with disabilities and those in need of treatment has been encouraged.

Conclusion

In short, achieving the goals set out in the Address is important for our future. Today, Uzbekistan is doing everything possible to create modern, advanced and innovative conditions for young people to get an education, acquire a profession and grow into mature people. Because the more attention is paid to the support of the younger generation, their upbringing as spiritually mature, physically healthy, patriotic and selfless, the protection of their rights and interests, the higher its effectiveness.
